

ABSTRACT

The invention concerns a device for storage and search of textual and graphic data in electronic form, said device comprising display means, user-interface means, control means, means for storing said data, means for selecting data to be displayed according to the user's instructions. The invention is characterized in that it comprises a multiplexed address bus.

1. A device for storage and search of textual and graphic data in electronic form, comprising display means, user-interface means, control means, means for storing said data, means for selecting data to be displayed according to the user's instructions, characterized in that it comprises a multiplexed address bus.